

The figure displays a 4x5 grid of 20 heatmaps, each representing a principal component (PC) of the spatial data. The heatmaps are labeled #0 through #19. The spatial domain is a square area, and the color scale ranges from purple (low values) to yellow (high values). The patterns of high and low values vary across the different PCs, indicating different spatial structures captured by each component.

5